Your business was closed due to COVID-19. You cautiously reopened under awkward and costly rules and conditions imposed on your operation that limit profitability. Now to add to your worries, your employees are presenting you with problems you've never dealt with – requests and situations you could never have imagined.

How do you avoid legal consequences while trying to maintain a disciplined, productive and flexible workforce, all while being a considerate, conscientious employer that hopes to end the year as a healthy business?

This webinar will update you on the biggest current risks small business owners face and some unseen issues you never dreamed of.
